

THE WEATHER.

Fair and continued warm Sunday and Monday.

GOOD READING.

The German retreat yesterday became an utter rout. The flight all along the line became precipitate and the allies were closely in pursuit. Operating from the captured town of Soissons, the French started a turning movement and crossed the Aisne river and advanced two or three miles.

The German plan to make a stand at the Vesle has gone glimmering and they are now in a mad rush to reach the Aisne, abandoning the whole salient that cost them so much. New troubles are looming up for the beaten foe. The victorious allies with faces towards Berlin are hard to hold back.

FOLLOWING THE FLAG

Chas. S. Johnson has been notified of the arrival overseas of his son, Faulkner.

Ernest Cravens arrived Friday on a short visit to his father, L. C. Cravens.

Omer P'Pool has arrived home on sick leave from Ithaca, N. Y., following an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Annie Cayce has gone to New York to buy goods for her new millinery store. Miss Sara Cayce, connected with the same house, has just returned from Chicago.

Lieut. James Hanbery, a Christian county boy, has been wounded in France. The news came in a letter to Mrs. J. D. McGowan from her brother J. S. Hanbery of Enkl, Oklahoma, stating that his son had been wounded. The extent of his injuries is not known. Mr. Hanbery had three sons who are volunteers in the army, two being in France and one in Cuba. His other two sons are preparing to volunteer in a few days. The Hanbery family formerly resided in Christian county, and all of the boys were born here. Lieut. Hanbery is a lawyer by profession. Twenty-two grandchildren of the late Jno. W. Hanbery are now engaged in war work being volunteers in the army.

Mrs. F. M. Stites last night received a new letter regarding the wounding of her son, Joseph Stites, which follows:

June 5th, 1918.
Dear Mrs. Stites:
Your son, Sergt. J. Stites, asked me to let you know that he is in the hospital. He was "gassed" on June fourteenth. He was somewhat burned about the eyes, back and arms, but none in the lungs. He wants you to know that he is in a good hospital with the best possible care from the doctors and nurses. He will be evacuated in a few days to a base hospital and you will hear from him there. He says that lately that his mail from you has been irregular. He was so brave in action and is so patient here in the hospital. You may indeed be proud that your son is doing his bit for his country so well.

Very sincerely,
ORIS ELOIE HENTHOUSE

$120 SUPPER AND SALE

The ladies of the Concord school district held an ice cream supper and auction sale Friday night on the lawn of Mrs. T. A. Mayes, formerly the old Mercer place, on north Main St. just beyond the city limits. A large crowd was present and everybody had fun, and lots of it.

Fifteen gallons of home-made ice cream and tubs of lemonade were not enough for the thirst throats. There was an auction sale of chickens, eggs, vegetables, watermelons, and a pig. The pig brought $12.00 and was unsewn.

Sheriff J. J. Cliborne auctioned the sale and did some fine work. The $45 taken in from the auction sale is evidence of his good work. The total receipts amounted to $120, which amount will be turned over to the Red Cross.

Someone gave a sawing machine which was to have been sold but which was not present for people to see, will be sold tomorrow in front of the courthouse.

Messrs. T. E. Hartley, S. E. Yancey and Sam T. Fruit were the "old addle" who added much to the enjoyment of the evening by their delightful music.

THE SALIENT WIPED OUT MAD RUSH TO ESCAPE

CONFIDENCE AND COURAGE

FOUR YEARS OF WAR FINDS TIDE HAS TURNED AND ENEMY ON THE RUN.

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Aug. 3.—Unshaken resolution to go forward to the final victory, increasing confidence because America has joined in the great conflict and prediction of a complete triumph of the Allied arms were voiced today in a series of statements from leading Englishmen, on Great Britain's part in the four years of war ending August fourth. The statements, issued by the British Bureau of Information follow:

By the Earl of Reading, British Ambassador and High Commissioner at Washington:

"The fourth anniversary of our entry into the war finds the nation stern and resolute. Success and reverse have been met with the same unflinching fortitude, and never has the spirit of the people been finer nor their confidence higher.

"Sustained in their continuous and unweary effort by the love of liberty, Navy, Army and civilians have alike done great deeds. At the outset the Navy swept the sea, and our original British Army, some 160,000 strong, withstood with France and Belgium the mighty onrush of German millions. That tiny army handed down its spirit and tradition to the hosts that subsequently responded to the country's call.

"In every sphere of war activity the men and women of Britain are taking an ever-increasing share, and however long may be the duration of the war, and whatever its further cost in blood and treasure, the British people will, in common with our Allies, give up the struggle for the freedom of mankind.

"Coupled with that spirit of stern resolve which animates every section of the community, is the feeling of very real gratitude to America for her aid to the Allied cause. The glorious achievements of the never-ending stream of American soldiers which is pouring into Europe go far to make certain the final and complete triumph of our arms.

"The day is dawning; already the bright beams of the sun of liberty are piercing and dissipating the clouds of tyranny and despotism. Soon a new era of peace will open to the world."

By Sir Henry Bahington Smith, Assistant Commissioner:

"Four years of war have taught us hard lessons, and there is no sacrifice, but that of honor, which they have not demanded; but our determination remains unshaken and we shall go forward to the final victory. Nothing can be more potent for steeling our resolve and strengthening our confidence than the knowledge that American is fighting side by side with us—America, high in ideals, vigorous in action, headless in resources. We watch with eager eyes your boys, the heat of your young life, setting forth by thousands daily to the battlefields of Europe, followed by your love and pride. We claim to share in that love, and we rejoice to see that your pride will be justified in the fullest measure.

OUR TRADE SOUTH.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 3.—The United States has been asked to participate in a Commercial Congress in Montevideo, Uruguay, from December 17 to 24 of this year. The object of the congress is to promote and expand trade and commerce on this hemisphere, particularly among the Latin-American countries.

PRESIDENT'S JAP PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

UNITED STATES AND JAPAN WILL ACT TOGETHER IN POLICING SIBERIA.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 3.—Official statements by the American and Japanese Governments made tonight announce that plans for extending military aid to Russia in Siberia will be undertaken by the U. S. and Japan alone, with other allied co-belligerents assenting in principle.

The United States and Japan will each send a few thousand men to Vladivostok to act as a common force in the occupying and safeguarding the city and protecting the rear of the westward moving Czechoslovak army. Meanwhile the United States will continue to co-operate with the Allies in operating from Murmansk and Archangel. The present object of the United States is not to interfere in any way with Russian self-government or internal affairs, but only to aid where the Russians are willing to accept such assistance.

WOMEN'S COMMITTEE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE.

After the business meeting of the Women's Committee of the Council of Defense, the chairman and a goodly number of ladies were addressed by Miss Annie Anderson, of Louisville. The speaker traced the ideals of freedom which have never been lost in the Anglo-Saxon races to our own day. Taking the growth of democracy and ideals of freedom as the base of our greatness she appealed to the rich and great and powerful of our country to give the weaker peoples of our strength. While the spirit of freedom was growing among the Anglo-Saxon peoples the greatest military autocracy of the world's history and now comes the climax in the world struggle in which our men and women are engaged in a final struggle to preserve and defend individual liberty.

Men, money and resources are needed. Resources are munitions and food. Self denial is necessary to give our Allies food and feed ourselves. Our organizations must meet these needs by the conservation and production of food, much of which is the work of women.

LITTLE DOUBT THAT CONGRESS WILL PASS BILL RECOM-MENDED.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 3.—Draft ages 18 to 45 years will be recommended to Congress in a bill embodying the War Department's new man-power program, which will be introduced in both Houses Monday and expedited by committee with a view to prompt consideration when the regular session resumes late this month.

Secretary Baker said all possible combinations of age limits were carefully studied and it was found that in order to get men into class one for the program proposed 18 to 45 was necessary. The bill, however, contains a provision authorizing the President to call out of class one by classes according to age, so that if it is found possible men between 18 and 19 will be called out later than older men found eligible.

LATEST INDICATIONS POINT TO NOMINATION OF SHIELDS FOR SENATOR.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 3.—Incomplete returns from the Democratic primary election now give Senator John K. Shields a lead for Senator and Judge A. H. Roberts a smaller lead for Governor.

Shields has 3,550 over Rye and Roberts 2,509 over Austin Peay. All of the candidates are still claiming that late returns will elect them.

ROBERT WARWICK AND ELAINE HAMMERSTEIN
IN THE MAD LOVER

"The Mad Lover" is a drama with many comedy touches and with a climax that contains a big punch. It tells of a husband who wrongly suspects his beautiful young wife. Crazy at the thought of her unfaithfulness he attempts in the final scene to choke her, but then comes a surprising twist in the picture with a happy ending.

THE PETITIONS IN CHURCHES

SIGNATURES TO THE PAPERS
CALLING PROHIBITION
ELECTION ARE PILING
UP.

GOAL OF 2500 BY MONDAY

THEY WILL CONTAIN MORE NAMES THAN ARE REAL-LY NEEDED.

The prohibition petitions were presented to voters in every precinct yesterday at the polls, but the light vote interfered with the plan to secure enough names almost without effort.

Some hustling was accordingly done in the city and at many churches throughout the county the petitions will be presented to the congregations for other signatures. The petitions must have about 2100 names but the plan is to secure 2,500 to 3,000.

Voters are subscribing with surprising unanimity. The colored people are taking a big part in the campaign and promises to bring in good reports. One preacher named Green who spoke Friday in the meeting, said he had two churches with 700 members and he pledged the votes of two-thirds of his voters.

It begins to look like the city itself will supply the necessary names as many people are hunting up the petitions and asking to be allowed to sign them.

It is expected to file the petition in County Judge Champlin's office Monday and it will then lie over for exceptions.

The election is asked for October 4, three days after the regular registration.

WILL RENOUNCED

MRS. E. P. FEARS SEEKS TO BREAK THE WILL OF HER LATE HUSBAND.

Mrs. Mary E. Fears, widow of the late E. P. Fears, has filed a formal renunciation of her husband's will, recently admitted to probate, and has elected to take her share of the estate, more than two-thirds of which was left to their only child, Lucile, now Mrs. Fenton S. Cunningham.

Mrs. Cunningham by her husband's next friend, has filed a petition, setting up a statement of the estate and asking that it be administered by the Master Commissioner.

Both parties to the litigation live in the Fears homestead on South Main Street, bequeathed to the daughter.

BOY VICTIM OF COLITIS.

Wayna, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Smith, corner 13th and Walnut streets, died yesterday morning about 3.30 o'clock of colitis. The child had been sick about nine days, and was thought to be improving until Friday when he suddenly showed signs of a relapse.

Mr. Smith and family came here last winter from Tennessee after Mr. Smith had been engaged as florist for T. L. Metcalfe. The body will be taken to Nashville on the Dixie Flyer this morning for burial. The family are devout members of the Christian church.

OFFICIAL REPORTS SLOW.

The belated report of the killing of Luke Franklin, of Golden Pond, Ky., came in yesterday through official channels, giving no date. His mother received advice of his death about two weeks ago. The official report of the wounding of Joseph Stites has not yet come in.

AMERICANS, FRENCH AND BRITISH HOT ON THE HEELS OF THE HUNTED TEUTONS

(By Associated Press.)

WAR SUMMARY.

The great salient between Soissons and Rheims, on the Aisne-Marne front has been wiped out by the Allied forces. French cavalry patrols are now operating along the railroad running between the two cities constituting pivot points previous to the German advance. American troops hold the outskirts of Fismes the great supply base of the German army, which the enemy strove with his utmost strength to hold. The Allied advance guard have reached the Southern bank of the Aisne and forces combined, thrusts of French, British and Americans appear great enough now to drive the Germans back even beyond the Aisne to the heights of Chemin-Des-Dames.

Both east and west the Allies Saturday increased the speed of their advance, gaining over six miles at certain points. Notwithstanding the difficulties confronting them, the Allies are bringing up guns as fast as the Germans are withdrawing theirs and all roads over which the Germans are retreating are being subjected to the heaviest bombardments.

Coincidentally the British regained important ground west of the Aisne river for a distance of three miles north of Albert, where large units were withdrawn to support the crown prince's armies. Indications now are that the British may strike at any minute in Picardy or Flanders and if the German's defeat south of the Aisne is complete as the reports indicate, the drive may start any time.

JAMES AN EASY WINNER FOR SENATOR

KIMBALL HARDLY BLACKED
THE BOARD IN CHRISTIAN
—BRUNER LEADS HIS TICKET.

(By Associated Press.)

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 3.—Returns from thirty-two counties in today's state-wide primary shows Senator James Kimball a surprisingly large vote winning over W. Praslay Kimball, of Lexington, by an overwhelming majority for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator. Dr. Ben L. Bruner of Louisville, was leading B. J. Beethum, of Somerset, by 951 votes for the Republican nomination for senator. Scattering returns from 6 counties out of the Third District give B. S. Huntsman, of Bowling Green, a slight lead over William Henry Jones, of Glasgow, his nearest opponent.

Chief Justice W. E. Settle was apparently a winner over J. W. Henson, of Henderson, on early returns, in the race for the democratic nomination for the Appellate Court in the second district; while F. J. Pantecost of Henderson, was leading Muskar L. Heavrin, of Hartford, for the Republican nomination. The nomination of J. M. Robison, of Barbourville over Don C. Edwards, of London in the republican race for the congressional nomination was conceded by Edwards' followers when the latter carried only two counties in the district.

THE LOCAL RACES.

The Democratic and Republican primaries in this city yesterday were extremely quiet and without affairs. Ballots were provided for 10,000 voters, but not 3,000 were cast in both primaries.

Senator James got practically all of the Democratic votes. In the majority of the precincts Kimball did not get a vote. Bruner was a favorite with the few republicans who care to vote, but Beethum got some votes by reason of being first on the ballot.

Returns from 15 precincts had come in last night and those gave James 458 and Kimball 8. The same average of 30 votes to the precinct will make about 1,000 votes cast in the democratic primary. The same precincts gave Bruner 200 and Beethum 104 and the total Republican vote will hardly exceed 500.

TEN VOLUNTEERS.

Two calls have been made on the local exemption board for eight men to go to Indianapolis on August 15 to take a course of training to fit them to serve as chauffeurs and for two men to go on the same day to Auburn, Ala., to enter the polytechnic institute there for a special course of training.

Already the required number of men have volunteered to fill both calls. Those volunteering to go to Indianapolis are: Forrest B. Culver, Charles Dulin, Otto Willis Flab, James Claud King, James Bailey Bearden, Arthur Boyd, Walter Biggestaff and John Tom Adams.

Those to go to Auburn, Ala., are: Frank Maccham and Hope Carter.

Replying to a request that he expedite the list of American casualties in fighting on the Somme, General Pershing has called Secretary Baker that the task of assembling the names of the men was an extremely difficult one because of the limited means of communication in the battle areas and owing to the fact that American troops are engaged with French and British units.

Secretary Baker said an estimate of casualties was contained in General Pershing's cablegram. There was nothing to indicate today when the increased casualty lists resulting from the present severe fighting would begin to come in.

Referring to the projected exchange of American and German prisoners of war the West Zeitung of Bremen makes this amusing remark:

"We are able to contain our joy American prisoners are welcome guests for whom we have sufficient employment on the eastern labor market and in our agricultural enterprises behind the front. They may be sure of getting, with future punctuality all they are entitled to under the Hague convention and more if they prove good workers, although they must thank Anglo-American starvation measures if their diet falls below the home flesh-pots. It will do the Americans a powerful lot of good to acquaint themselves with culture from the fountain head." It considered the quick release of recently captured Americans an injustice to others who have been prisoners for a longer time.

REJECTED BY NAVY; DRAFTED

Man Accepted for Service in Army After Qualifying as Postman.

Corvallis, Ore.—Ernest Chase, rural mail carrier, enlisted in the navy. After his final physical examination he was discharged as being physically unfit. Then he got a job as rural carrier and invested $40 in a rig, horse and outfit. After working 20 days he was called in the military draft, passed by the local examining board, and ordered to camp.

He doesn't know now whether to sell his rig and give up his job, or whether to take a "lay off" and try to be rejected by the army as he was by the navy.

SKIRTS OF CURTAINS.

(By Associated Press.)

Amsterdam, Aug. 2.—A woman living in Germany has written to a relative here that owing to the scarcity of clothing she has had her yellow window curtains taken down, dyed navy blue, and converted into a coat and skirt. Her sheets she has had made into underclothing.

The willingness of postoffice employees to join the navy and serve their country in the position for which they are best fitted, is plainly shown in the thirty odd applications from such qualified men begging to be enlisted, says the Paducah Sun.

Notice To Druggists Price Advance

For over a year now we have succeeded in maintaining our old prices, principally by virtue of a big increase in sales, which reduced our overhead cost.

We had hoped to bridge the war period without a change in prices on

USE ICE AS A NECESSITY NOT AS A LUXURY.

Do not waste ice, says the United States Food Administration. Its use as a luxury to serve with salads, fruit and sea foods and to put more than is necessary in glasses of water, tea and other drinks should be discouraged.

There is to be no curtailment in the use of ice as a necessity, but it should be used carefully in localities where it is considered a necessity when used to preserve food and in administering comfort, and every reasonable effort will be made to see that families are supplied with their legitimate needs.

SIGNIFICANT FACTS.

The net decrease in birth rate in 1917 was 48 per cent in Germany and 54 per cent in Hungary.

The net decrease in England and France was 24 per cent.

Germany's loss of population was 10,000 per 1,000,000, Hungary's 70,000 per 1,000,000, and England's 10,000 per 1,000,000.

The marriage rate in England showed a marked increase, but the rate in the central powers declined sharply.

A great decrease in the mortality rate in England, coupled with the increased marriage rate, will result in a net increase in population in the British Isles as a result of the war.

War greatly increases the death rate among all persons over 70 years of age, owing to worry and nervous excitement.

The marriage rate of any country is the surest indication of the morale of the nation.

Too Much for Mother.

Patience: You know father's some talker.

"Well, he was to make a speech last night, and mother asked him to be short, and father told mother when she wanted him to stop talking to raise her hand."

"And did she?"

"No. You see, about the time she should have raised her hand she was asleep with a lot of others in the audience."

Recruiting Officer Says Uncle Sam Hates Suit Big Enough for Kasan.

Salina, Kan.—"I want to fight," declared C. C. Black, twenty-one, of Milwaukee, at the local naval recruiting office. A recruiting officer gave him the "once over," put him through a series of paces and then said:

"There is nothing doing here. There isn't a sailor suit in Uncle Sam's navy that would fit you."

Black walked out of the office a disappointed man. He weighs 275 pounds and was recently registered under the new draft law.

ELOPERS BEAT OUT FATHER

Young Georgia Couple Run Off in Big Automobile and Are Married.

Nashville, Ga.—Foster Monk and Miss Maurine Moore of Douglas, Ga., were married here at midnight recently, after a sensational automobile race from Douglas.

Monk and his bride-to-be left Douglas ostensibly for a ride in Monk's "big six."

Shortly after their departure the father of the young woman became suspicious. The father and a twin sister of the bride brought an eight-cylinder car into play, giving chase. Cupid was the first to make the home stretch.

"Daddy, you are too late—we are married," was the daughter's greeting as the father came up.

The father accepted the situation, extended his blessing and congratulated the bridegroom on his skill as a driver.

SIX THOUSAND DENTISTS NOW IN U. S. SERVICE

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Six thousand of the 12,000 dentists in America are in active military service and 20,000 of those remaining at home are members of the Preparedness league and have performed more than 500,000 dental operations free of charge to permit young men to pass strict military examinations.

Members of the National Dental Association from all parts of the country are gathering here for a big "win the war" convention, Aug. 5 to 10, at which results already obtained will be reviewed and plans discussed for extending further aid to the government. Ten thousand delegates are expected to attend.

The Canadian Dental Association has decided to attend in a body instead of meeting in Canada this year and this will give the convention an international character.

SANDWICH SALE.

Attractive young girls will sell equally as attractive sandwiches on the streets Monday, Aug. 5th, from 10 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. The women and kiddies of Hopkinsville will enjoy these sandwiches but the women and kiddies of France and Belgium will be the real beneficiaries as the proceeds of this sale are to go to the work being done for them by the Relief Committee of the Woman's Council of National Defense.

Monday will be a busy day in town, as well will be attending County and women the War Kitchen demonstrations here and other war work, so why not arrange to spend the whole day downtown and buy your lunch from these sandwich girls?

He Misunderstood.

"Yes," said the Australian soldier, who was being shown round London. "You've got some fine places here. We ain't got nothing like them in Australia. That place, now," pointing to the hotel at Euston Station, "that's a grand place! You do things on a much larger scale than we do."

"Really, I always thought things were over so much bigger in Australia."

"Well! That there place, now—we'd think that ever so much too big in Australia."

"Yes; but you remember what a lot of people visit London through this station."

"But, I ain't got no idea of the size of the place, now."

"Hotel! D'you call that an hotel? My word, I thought it was the ticket office!"—London Opinion.

GRANDDAD IS STILL YOUNG

Recently Accepted for Place in Engineers' Corps in United States Army.

Stedone, Wash.—When James A. (House of Clinton, Mont.), made his friendly goodbye and started on war of his own making, he had to leave a round of grandchildren along with the other relatives he left behind. Mr. House has a son in service and three daughters in their own homes, and yet is possessed of the youth and physical qualifications that made him eligible for a place in Uncle Sam's army and was readily accepted for the engineers' replacement company when he offered himself to the Missouri recruiting office.

$650 for a Tree.

Edinburg, Ind.—The W. T. Thompson Veneer company here has just bought from Wabash college at Crawfordville a walnut tree for which it paid $650. The tree is on the campus, which is made up in part of native forest growths. Its body will be cut into airplane stock, while the stump will be made into veneer for piano cases. W. T. Thompson, head of the local company, says he regards the tree as the finest of its kind in Indiana.

UNCLE SAM AFTER SPEEDERS.

State laws regulating traffic on the Dixie Highway between Louisville and the big artillery range at West Point will be rigidly enforced by the military authorities as a result of a conference held yesterday at West Point between a committee of the Louisville Automobile Club and Col. Blakely, commandant at the range.

The Automobile Club for some time has been receiving complaints as to speeding on the part of taxi drivers, tourists and even soldiers traveling in automobiles between Louisville and the artillery range.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

You are required to call at the County Assessor's office at once and give in your list of property for taxes, for we cannot list everybody the last day. I have from July 1, 1918, to Nov. 1, 1918, to list 14,000 taxpayers. Consequently everyone who can should come in now in order to save paying a penalty. Very few have listed so far.

W. J. BYRAN TESTIFIES GREAT FISH NO FAKE

MONSTER THAT COULD HAVE SWALLOWED JONAH ON EXHIBITION IN EVANSVILLE.

"The Great Fish," the property of Capt. Charles H. Thompson of Miami, Fla., arrived in Evansville, says the Courier, on board the yacht Tamiami and was seen by several hundred Evansville people in the afternoon and evening. Capt. Thompson has many credentials to back his statement concerning the fish. Among the credentials are a letter from William Jennings Bryan, one from the mayor of Miami and others from scientists.

The following figures of the fish are given in a descriptive circular: Measures 45 feet in length.

Weights 15 tons, or nearly thirty thousand pounds.

Its liver alone weighed 1,700 pounds, or more than ten full-grown men put together.

It is twenty-three feet around the body, and its tail measures ten feet from tip to tip.

It had swallowed an octopus weighing four hundred pounds. A black fish weighing fifteen hundred pounds, and five hundred pounds of coral also found in its stomach.

It could have swallowed twenty Jonahs without suffering the slightest pang of indigestion.

It smashed a boat into thousands of pieces and crushed the rudder and propeller of a thirty-one ton yacht with a single swish of its mighty tail.

Five harpoon thrusts and one hundred and fifty large caliber rifle bullets only served to increase its fury, and it took five days to finally kill it.

The battle lasted thirty-nine hours—two days and night—in open water with the monster dragging a small boat at express train speed for hundreds of miles.

Scientific authorities believe that the creature was an inhabitant of depths more than fifteen hundred feet below the surface, and that it was blown up by some subterranean or volcanic upheaval which injured its diving apparatus so it was unable to return to its native depths.

Its hide is three inches thick and enabled it to withstand the most enormous water pressure, a pressure almost inconceivable to man. Its eyes, which are very small, have no lids and were never closed, indicating that it lived at a depth where eyes were of no avail.

The creature is not classed in natural history, the genus or species is unknown, and it is not only the most remarkable zoological specimen, but the largest specimen of the fish tribe known in history.

Although the largest fish ever captured, scientists claim it was only a baby of its tribe, and if it had lived to attain full growth it would have been two and one-half times as large. Every undertaking establishment on the Florida East Coast from Jacksonville to Key West gave up their entire supply of formaldehyde to preserve the monster, and over nineteen barrels were used.

Child Gardeners in England. Apart from the school gardens, which are increasing in number and size and excellence every year, a great deal of work in the direction of food production is being done by children, both in the gardens attached to their homes and elsewhere. In a number of towns the children have been organized for the cultivation of back gardens. According to a report sent to the food production department, Leyton, Essex, has an excellent record in this matter and it is claimed locally that no other town can equal its record.—London Globe.

Pitiful. "Pitiful, isn't it?" "What?" "Why, the fact that some people have so little fear of firing peanut shells around."

Eagerness. "Are there any dogs around?" "No," said the eager real estate agent. "The last two dogs in this neighborhood ate each other up. They eat dog, you know."

Realms of the Commonplace

By IMES MACDONALD

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Nell Bradley sat on the edge of her uncle's desk and swung her feet thoughtfully.

"Well, Winkle," said Mr. Bradley, "what's on your mind?"

"You know, Uncle Ned," she said gravely. "I believe I'll get married."

Whereat Mr. Bradley's sense of humor overcame the gravity of the situation to such an extent that he lay back in his chair and roared with laughter.

"Have you decided on the victim?" he asked, finally.

"Well, no," she said thoughtfully. "I haven't."

"Then why worry about it until the right chap comes along?" he said practically. "You're young yet."

"I'm twenty-four," she reminded him, "and I'm lonesome. With all the nice young men in the world why should I be lonesome?"

"No reason at all, Winkle. But you've had plenty of chances," grinned Mr. Bradley, "and if you're so keen on matrimony why didn't you take one of them?"

"Too commonplace," she commented, vaulting on her feet.

"My dear," he laughed, "matrimony's the most commonplace thing in the world. It's the one thing that's done consistently, persistently, and over and over again until death does its part."

"Central old thing," she said, making a dive at him and missing his hair as she skipped toward the door.

"But you can't pull it off in a week," he shouted at her, as the door shut.

She came back laughing. "How much?" she bargained.

He studied her with a grin. "But you a dowry of twenty thousand dollars against your staying single for five more years, you can't get married in a week."

"Make it a month," she said, after a moment of deep thought. "And I'll take you."

"Understand," he conditioned. "It's to be a bona fide marriage. No frame-up proposition. You've got to live with the chap as his wife for at least six months."

"All right," she agreed. "Write it out."

"Now, you'd better get busy," he grinned, after he had written out the agreement and she had tucked it down into her blouse. But she only made a little face at him as she vanished through the door.

"I'm Twenty-Four."

agreement and she had tucked it down into her blouse. But she only made a little face at him as she vanished through the door.

As she descended in the elevator, however, her mind was busily running over the eligibility of her acquaintance. Some of those who had loved and lost the charming Nell had married elsewhere; others of them were engaged or trying to be—also elsewhere. Anyway, they all belonged to the commonplace. The man who loved and loses always becomes commonplace in the one he's lost.

However, if you asked anyone in Bellington who was the most commonplace young man in the otherwise eligible class, the almost universal answer would have been, "Marcus Barnes."

But strangely enough the image of Marcus Barnes had already taken shape in the back of Nell Bradley's hitherto particular mind. Never once had he called on her or even expressed the desire to do so. Never had he happened to be at her dinner party, nor had she even danced with him more than once or twice. And she suddenly remembered that he danced rather well, too, although she had never thought of it before, and she had known him for years!

In the meantime, Marcus Barnes, the most commonplace young man in Bellington, left the bank where he earned his nifty bread and stepped across the street and down a little alleyway into a corner where his car was parked. Two minutes later he turned down Spring street, and as he swung around the corner at Fifth they standing at the corner waiting for a car.

"Hello, Nell," he grinned, as he stilled up to the curb. "Hop in and I'll take you home."

She hopped obediently, with a little laugh. "You running a jitney bus, Mark?" she asked.

"No," he chuckled, as he reached across her lap to draw the door shut. And then as they started with a jerk: "This is a jitney bus—pay as you leave—kindly have exact fare ready."

"Why, how funny," she thought, as she laughed into his eyes. "I never knew he was like that." And she noticed how tastefully he was dressed, almost fastidiously in a conservative sort of way. But after a few moments of chatter on her part and a most surprising silence in his, they drew up in front of her home.

"Pay as you leave," he reminded her, as she stepped from the car.

"Silly," she said, throwing away toward the house.

"Titter," said the commonplace Marcus Barnes.

"I'm not," she returned hotly.

"Well, I told you what the fare was when you got in," he said firmly.

"You don't expect me to be kissing you out here before all the neighbors, do you?" she demanded.

"Makes no difference to me where it happens," he said, shutting off his engine and vaulting out over the door.

It was the most commonplace moment of the most commonplace hour that the commonplace Marcus Barnes had ever known, as he marched the somewhat surprised Miss Bradley up the steps and into the hall.

She could see that she was in for it, but then, what did it matter? She would extend him one of those little impersonal and indefinite kisses which she reserved for very young or very old and feeble male relatives. But she hadn't counted on the commonplace Mr. Barnes. The first thing she knew she found that she fitted into his arms as snugly and tightly as if she were made to be there. She shut her eyes and waited, but he only held her a little closer. She flinched open her eyes a wee bit to investigate the cause of the delay and flushed to find that he was studying her upturned face with a strange and puzzled wonderment.

"I never noticed before how lovely you are, Nell," he murmured, and then he collected his face slowly and deliberately, not once, but seven separate times, which wasn't so bad for the commonplace Marcus Barnes.

Everyday during the following week Nell Bradley expected to hear from the efficient fare collector, but it seemed that Marcus Barnes had had his moment and then shyly subsided. Ten days, a whole third of the allotted time passed and still there was no word. Miss Bradley was getting panicky, for her time was getting short, so with a grim determination about the set of her chin, and a suggestion of color under the smooth skin of her curved cheek, she decided to consult the assistant cashier of the First National bank about some securities she held.

The commonplace Mr. Barnes arose from his desk and looked just once into the eyes of Nell Bradley—and then believing in preparedness, he dismissed his stenographer.

The gallant Miss Bradley had begun to get cold feet. "It's—about those securities of mine, Mark," she started feebly.

"Securities nothing," said Marcus, the commonplace, reaching for the girl's handkerchief. "South-bound cars, pay as you enter." And he had already ringed up three fares when the austere voice of the bank's president came testily from the doorway.

"For heaven's sake! Why don't you two young people get married—and do your kissing at home?"

"Still we?" demanded Marcus Barnes of the girl in his arms.

"Let's," agreed Nell Bradley with a vague excitement in her thumping heart.

And the bank's president chuckled the news via the telephone into the amused ear of his old friend and crony, Nell's Uncle, George Bradley.

"Let this be a lesson to you, George! Never gamble with women—they have such winning ways—ha—ha!"

"Grown stuff, eh?" said the cynical Mr. Bradley. "Couldn't have lost a bet in a better cause now, could it? Youth, and love and marriage—fine business!"

Meanwhile the commonplace Marcus Barnes, dragging Nell Bradley about with a commonplace marriage license in his pocket, was hunting a commonplace preacher to perform a commonplace ceremony.

AND COURAGE

On the fourth of August, 1914, Great Britain declared war on Germany. The actual cause of war was the German invasion of Belgium. But war was certain from the moment France was attacked; for no Englishman would ever have held up his head on the continent of Europe if we had left France to her fate. So on the fourth of August we are still fighting to drive Germany out of Belgium and France. We rejoice that last year America was with us in this fight in spirit, and this year she is there with the men and the guns, so that at last the tide is turning. Just as the fourth of August, 1914, brought the final consummation of Franco-British friendship, so the fourth of August, 1918, when Britons and Americans are fighting together on the sacred soil of France, may be regarded as the last word in the Anglo-American compact which is the best guarantee of a peaceful world.

By Sir Charles Gordon, Chief of the Department of War Supplies of the British War Mission.

"Since my arrival in Washington about a year ago, I have had an opportunity as Director-General of war supplies for the British Government, of observing at close range the great preparations for war which have been made by the United States and have noted the three stages through which they have passed.

"First, the period which must be encountered when all is confusion, and which is incidental to the entry of any great nation into war, and during which all sorts of progress seems to be extremely slow. No matter how capable or willing the many prominent officials and voluntary workers may be, it is difficult during this period to have co-ordination between departments or governments who are all striving at the shortest possible notice to secure the various war supplies which are necessary to carry on war.

"That period has happily passed, however, and the second period has also come and gone, during which the spirit of co-operation has been most manifest between the many departments of the United States Government and the War Mission of the Allies situated in Washington. It may now be said that the third period has been reached, when the unbounded resources of the United States for carrying on the war are being quickly developed to such a point that all requirements, not only of the United States themselves but also of the Allies, will soon be taken care of, putting at the disposal of the military authorities in France such an army of men and supply of war materials as will have a determining influence on the course of the war."

By British Admiralty official now in charge of the Allied Oil Supplies: "The quiet confidence with which Great Britain in 1914 took her stand by France and Belgium—the stand which honor and duty required—remains unshaken. Now as then she has no illusions as to the strength of the foe or the difficulties of the task. Now as then she knows what principles are at stake. Now as then she makes all effort and sacrifice, and marches straight forward to the only possible goal. The soul of freedom lives yet and is not crushed beneath wealth and ease. It flings those things aside in scorn when the war on the hill sounds the trumpet call that liberty is in danger—and the eyes of the dead looking upward from beneath the battlefield or from ocean's floor do not appear in vain.

"Englishmen and Frenchmen and Italians have been longer in the war than Americans, and they know the advantage of morals as well as of the fighting strength which America knows that her ideals and her morale is bringing to the contest. They implore the same as their own. They admire her fine men—soldiers and sailors—and the giant's strength she is exerting under her great President to mobilize her men, her ships and all her wealth and material resources. They have seen her spirit and her sacrifices grow in intensity from day to day. They recognize the brains and inventive capacity of her people.

"The way in long yet, but the forces are marshalled under a great General, the navies are keeping open the highways of the seas—and to every man and woman who has the eye to see, the goal is visible—peace and renowned victory and the after time of a recreated world."

By Sir Henry Japp, Head of the Purchasing Department of the British War Mission in New York:

"August 4, 1914, will ever be memorable as the day on which Great Britain repudiated the German suggestion that the Treaty of 1839, guaranteeing the independence and neutrality of Belgium, was but a scrap of paper. That decision saved the world from the domination of Kultur, and put the issue clearly as a contest between Right and Might—between Good and Evil.

"Ever since then the British Navy has slightly held her enemy at bay while the Allied armies prepared and brave merchant sailors brought to Europe food and munitions, despite the menace of lurking submarines and mines. "During the past four years France has not held in vain, and will ever be known as Glorious France, buoyant with courage and ever grateful and grateful to her Allies.

April 6, 1917, will always be linked with August 4, 1914, as the date when the United States set the air of righteousness on the Allied cause. The splendid results already attained by this great country in the field make ultimate victory certain, and the growing friendship of America, France, Great Britain and Italy ensures the future peace of the world and the dawn of the brotherhood of man."

Four Quart Sauce Pan
98c

(Regular Price $1.98)

On SALE TUESDAY, AUGUST 6, 9:30 A. M.

To Housekeepers Only. No Telephone Orders.

It's a Mirro Aluminum Sauce Pan, and that says everything. Note, (1), the inset cover which prevents boiling over; (2), the no-burn knob; (3), the cool hollow steel handle; (4), the solid, tightly rolled sanitary heads; (5), the scientifically shaped sides which hold solids when the pan is tilted to drain off liquids; and (6), the famous Mirro finish.

Star feature 2 belongs exclusively to Mirro Aluminum. Stamped from a single sheet of pure aluminum of unusual hardness. No seam, solder or joint. This is the same famous aluminum ware you see advertised in the Saturday Evening Post and other national publications. This unusual offer is made for a short time only to acquaint you with the superb quality of the Mirro line.
